Go Now, and Come Back

For the graduates of west central Saskatchewan, 2026

You were raised on wide.

Wide sky, wide roads, wide silences that teach a person how to think.

You learned the weight of a neighbour's name,

the smell of rain before it comes,

the way a combine sounds at midnight and what it costs to bring in a crop.

That is not nothing.

That is everything most people spend a lifetime trying to learn.

Go now.

Go further than you thought you could.

Take the prairie in your chest into every room you enter.

You will meet people who have never watched a thunderhead build at the horizon, who do not know what it means to show up when someone needs you.

You do.

And come back.

Not because you have to.

Because this place made you, and it still needs people like you to keep it alive.
